Sulphur Fork,

Figure 1 consists of three line graphs side-by-side, labeled (a), (b), and (c). Each graph plots 'Percentage of correct responses' on the y-axis (0 to 100) against 'Condition' on the x-axis (Baseline, Training, Transfer).
 Graph (a) for the Control group shows high performance: Baseline (~92%), Training (~95%), and Transfer (~90%).
 Graph (b) for the MCI group shows a significant drop in the Transfer condition: Baseline (~82%), Training (~88%), and Transfer (~65%).
 Graph (c) for the AD group shows the lowest performance with a significant drop in the Transfer condition: Baseline (~65%), Training (~70%), and Transfer (~45%).
 In all graphs, the Training condition shows the highest performance, followed by Baseline, and then Transfer.
